About Sky Records: The record company was founded in the year 1975 and went on to become one of the few German labels to reap international acclaim. It was run by Günter Körber who quit his job at Metronome where he and Bruno Wendel had spent four years developing and managing the legendary BRAIN label.

About Tim Gane: No less a figure than Tim Gane, the man behind Stereolab, has delved into the Sky Records archives for our KOLLEKTION series. Gane has never hidden his love of Krautrock; many a Stereolab song has its foundations in the typical „motorik“ beat, whilst his latest band, Cavern Of Anti-Matter wallows in Klaus Dinger rhythms. Experimental sounds hold no fear for him, as early noise cassette releases under his Un-Kommuniti alias testify. His selection of tracks fits the pattern seamlessly: Asmus Tietchens, Cluster, Moebius, Roedelius, Michael Rother, Riechmann, Günter Schickert etc. All names writ large in the avant-garde scene of German progressive music, as well as underlining Günter Körber's audacity in offering such music a forum with his label.

In the booklet Asmus Tietchens, who released four albums on Sky Records, looks back on collaborating with Günter Körber
